The View
From My Window
WITH PASTOR JOEL

My niece was having some very strange physical symptoms. She was feeling nauseous (particularly in the morning) & had started to put on weight. I know what you're thinking, but she'd been told by her OB/GYN that she'd never be able to have children. As a result of that information she has always avoided babies. Literally, she had never held a baby in her life.

Long story short: she's due with her first baby in December! She was in shock for the first few days after finding out that she was expecting. Her mother was genuinely concerned for her mental stability. To their credit, she & her boyfriend got married.

That's one reason to be married, this morning we'll examine a few others.
