The View from My Window with Pastor Joel

A couple years ago we were studying the passage of Scripture that says, "Blessed are the peacemakers for they will be called the children of God." I'll never forget what one of the commentators I studied for that sermon said, "If you're not going to be a peacemaker, at least don't be a troublemaker." That comment would be a good place to start for today's message.

When following Jesus as one of His disciples, be open to discovering ways you stir up trouble. Maybe it's just to get a rise out of someone or you think it's funny. Change your goal from stirring things up to calming people down. Be a peacemaker, promote healing, learn to comfort the hurting, and help those who struggle. Stop giving them a hard time and start lending them a listening ear. On the battlefield of life we need more medics and less collateral damage.
