The View from My Window with Pastor Joel

The further I get away from my "program", that place where I'm eating on schedule & limiting myself to food that is good for me, the more outrageous my eating habits become. "Just a little bit more" soon becomes an all-day grazing habit. Trying to satisfy a craving takes me from the pantry to the refrigerator, to the cupboards, back to the pantry, eating a little of this, then a little of that... I'm never really full but I'm never really hungry either. I wish I pursued God like I do the satisfaction of my stomach.

Actually, that's the point! As long as our stomach is growling at us, pushing us around, absorbing our attention, our spiritual ears can't hear a thing. Quieting our flesh, we open ourselves up to a different kind of feeding program. Our hearts begin to hear what the Lord has been trying to tell us for a long time. Be still, quiet your flesh & your spiritual ears will hear amazing things.
