The View from My Window

with Pastor Joel

I play a lot of racquetball these days. As I write this, I have three very prominent welts: one above each elbow and a new one, planted on me just this morning, on my right side. That last one was extra painful for some reason. It wasn't hit exceptionally hard but it seemed to smack all the air out of my lungs for a moment. I have hit others and been hit. One of my friends got hit in the head with a racquet last Saturday.

We're not trying to injure one another and I've never seen any of these wounds result in any ill feelings. If you are going to play racquetball you need the ability to take a hit without taking it personal.

If you are going to live with other people you need the ability to take a hit without taking it personal. In fact, Jesus requires us to return love for every wound we receive! In life, as in racquetball, practice helps improve our game. Practice loving difficult people.
