The View from My Window

with Pastor Joel

There are brain surgeons who don't know how to fix a clogged sink. Nonetheless, I wouldn't want a plumber doing surgery on my brain! The plumber may know some things the surgeon doesn't but that doesn't make him smarter nor does it mean either can do what the other can. Every piece of knowledge we have, every skill we've developed is a gift from God. Some skills come naturally to us whereas others we've worked hard to master. Either way, they're a gift from God.

We spent a couple hours in prayer the other day and when we went to stand up everyone groaned and laughed as we righted ourselves. I quoted Paul in saying, "Having done all to stand, stand!" Then I added, "The older I get the more challenging that command becomes." Although we've been standing all our lives there will come a time when we cannot stand anymore. That will be a sad day. The same can be said for every other skill we've mastered. Therefore, don't take all these gifts, little and big, for granted. Be thankful for them and use them to glorify God and help others.
