The View from My Window

with Pastor Joel

Last week we looked at how fasting invites the power of God into our situation. We sacrifice our natural source of strength in preference to His supernatural power. This morning we consider the effects of fasting on us: it makes us hungry; it incites a battle with our flesh, it weakens us. In short, fasting humbles us.

Humility not only attracts God's attention, it cleans out our hearts, reduces our pride and helps us focus on what our needs really are as opposed to what we want. Chances are you're already pleased at who you are, what you think and how you act. Fasting opens our eyes to our own weaknesses and where we need to improve. Less flesh, more spirit, that's the goal. "I must decrease, He must increase."
