The View from My Window

with Pastor Joel

Ever have one of those days? I tried to take the dog out at 1 a.m. only to discover there was a racoon on our deck. Usually, taking the puppy with me to work gave my wife some time to rest. On this particular day it was more necessary than ever I take the puppy since she had gotten almost no sleep the night before. Usually, the pup was a delight to have along, moments of frustration in a sea of companionship. Today it was a few moments of companionship in a sea of frustration. He decided to take off around the church the other way while I was walking him, and for about five minutes, I thought I'd lost him for good. After having walked him for over a mile, and had him outside 4 times, he decided to pee in my office for the 1st time since we got him. He discovered a mud puddle and decided he liked it. I hadn't planned on giving him a bath... You get the idea.

THEN I review this sermon on being joyful in all circumstances, patient, kind, etc. God has such a great sense of humor but I don't always appreciate it.
