The View from My Window

With Pastor Joel

"I want my mommy!" It's a common expression. I remember that my brother, sisters & I used the term, "Mom" so often in a day that my mom would say, "Stop calling me mom, from now on my name is Sam, call me Sam." Mom knew where everything was. Mom was our connection to the outside world. If we needed a resource for school, clothes for gym class, if we got hungry, if we weren't feeling well, the expression was always the same: "Mom!" Then after a successful science project or win on a field of athletics we'd say, "Look what I did." Clearly, mom deserves a slice of every victory pie.

Mom always seemed close to a nervous breakdown until one of us needed help. Instantly, she was transformed into Wonder Woman. Always she knew what to do. There wasn't a spider or hornet that could scare her away when her child was in danger. Add strangers and monsters to that list too.

Happy Mother's Day, Mom! You're the best.
